HOME MUSIC BROUGHT TEARS

Eyes of Girls at Seattle Dimmed When Miss Kaai Sang
"Aloha."

When the clear, sympathetic voice of Miss Keala Kaai, accompanied by the Hawaiian orchestra, sang the tuneful melodies of the islands, tears dimmed the eyes of the girls in the pineapple booth at the Hawaiian building yesterday, and they had their first touch of homesickness. Miss Kaai's voice is as clear as the notes of a flute, and has a sympathetic quality that causes a tightening in the throats of her hearers. When she sings the lighter pieces there is a swing and a lilt to the music that brings up visions of the ball room, with the measured beat of dancing feet.

The Hawaiian girls left Honolulu a little more than three weeks ago, and while they are delighted with the exposition and with the thousands of kindly strangers who visit the Hawaiian building daily, the graceful subtle melodies of the singers bring thoughts of home and the sunny islands. One song, which was composed by Earnest Kaai, leader of the orchestra and uncle of the young soprano, was particularly affecting to the Hawaiian girls.

The lines of the chorus are these:

"Aloha, Aloha, I love you.
Hawaii, my queen of the sea, Those fairy isles, where nature smiles, Are dearer than Eden to me.
Though far, far away I may wander My thoughts, where'er I roam, Of you ever grow fonder.
Blessed land which my heart calls home."

Asked if they wished to go back home, the girls protested that they did not.

"The visit to the exposition is a delightful experience," said one young woman. "We would not have our parents think we are homesick and unhappy, because we are not. I suppose it is foolish to shed tears when we hear home songs, but it is no sign that we wish to go back; at least not until the exposition is over. Anyway, Miss Kaai has a wonderfully sweet voice, and I have no doubt that were she singing in Alaska there would be big strong men whose eyes would fill with tears when they thought of Seattle."

"I do not see how one could be homesick long among so many kindly people as you have here. Doubtless it is the same everywhere, but at the exposition everybody seems to be having a good time and out for a play spell. When they ask us about the islands we tell them because we love the islands and we want them to know all about them."

"If the Hawaiian exhibit makes a million or two million persons acquainted with our pineapples and our other fruits, the work will be a success. That is the reason for the pineapple booth—to give the people an opportunity to taste the fruit from the islands. We believe that when they do know our fruit the welfare of the islands will be assured, because a wider market will be opened. That is the serious part of the work. The singing and the orchestra music is to show a feature of Hawaii that has been praised elsewhere and which appears to please the visitors to the exposition."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

COAST JAPANESE ARE NOT HELPING

Coast advices are to the effect that K. Kiyose, the Japanese journalist now here, came on behalf of those Coast Japanese who have refused to contribute to the expenses of the strike. The San Francisco Globe, of June 17, says of his mission:

"Believing that Japanese strikers on the Hawaiian Islands sugar plantations do not deserve the assistance of their countrymen residing on this coast, a committee of prominent Asiatic merchants today sent K. Kiyose, editorial writer on the Japanese American, to Honolulu to make a report on the merits of the strike."

"Although the men who were instrumental in sending Kiyose to Honolulu are members of the Japanese association of America, the secretary of that organization announced today that the writer would not act as its representative."

"The association fears that if it were to stand behind Kiyose's investigation it would be investing his mission with too great importance and might lead to complications."

"Prominent Japanese today expressed themselves as confident that an investigation would prove they had followed the proper course in not offering to help the strikers."

The above analysis shows the water to be EXTREMELY LIGHT AND PURE, and its freedom from organic matter and consequent excellent keeping qualities, make it a most desirable table water. As a mineral water, its lightness will enable it to be RETAINED ON THE MOST DELICATE STOMACH, and we believe that when freely used, it will be found to possess decided therapeutic value, since the potent ingredients present are free from lime and other inert salts. We would expect good results from its use in case of gout, rheumatism and stomach troubles, as well as diseases of a scrofulous character.

VOLCANO EXCURSIONISTS OFF THIS AFTERNOON

The Mauna Kea leaves sharp at 3:30 this afternoon from the Inter-Island wharf. Excursionists are requested to be on the boat by three o'clock, as there will be no delay after sailing time.

The number of excursionists who will go to the volcano is very large, but there is still room for more. The Inter-Island Company expects many who have been hesitating to make up their minds today, and is making plans for their accommodation.

This is the only public excursion that has been run for several years, recent previous excursions having been for lodge and other private organizations. It's the best chance many people may get for a long time to see the Big Island and the volcano.
